PERFORMANCE NOTES

p.s.p. poco sul ponticello, position the bow near the bridge, producing a slightly glassy timbre without being as extreme as molto sul ponticello

m.s.p. molto sul ponticello, position the bow to the bridge as close as possible to produce a harsh timbre

Different noteheads indicate extended techniques, as specified in the score. A wedge above the note denotes increased bow pressure. For aleatoric boxes, material may be repeated freely, without strict tempo or rhythmic coordination between players.

PROGRAM NOTES

Matsu (まつ, 松), also known as Japanese pine, is a cultural symbol of resilience and inner strength. During a visit to Hokkaido in December, I encountered snow-covered shrines. While many trees stood bare and withered in the harsh winter conditions, the pine trees remained upright and green. This has inspired me to write a piece that reflects the pine's solitude and resilience in the winter. Traditional Japanese tone clusters, also known as aitate (合竹), are used throughout the composition.
